Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Monday 15 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Much milder than of late, with some sunny spells.

Today:
Perhaps a damp start in places, but patchy rain soon clearing east. This will leave a legacy of low cloud and mist for a time that should slowly clear to reveal sunny spells, in a milder day than of late. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
A mild night, with rain spreading northeast during the evening. This rain undergoing a lull for a time, before a second band of rain reaches western areas towards dawn. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Tuesday:
A damp start, but becoming bright and breezy, with sunny spells. Some sharp showers should follow eastwards into the afternoon, perhaps becoming prolonged in places. Remaining mild. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Changeable and often rather windy, with some rain possible on all days, generally followed by sunnier interludes. Temperatures falling to nearer-normal for a time, with some overnight frosts returning.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.